we will end
homelessness

Team game: Lean on me

In this game of balance and coordination you'll need the support of your team if you want to win!

Game rules:

- Minimum 3 players per team
- 1 referee to call out the formations (see right)
- Fastest team to get into the formation will win a point
- You have 30 seconds to get into the formation for each round
- Any team who doesn't get themselves into the formation in time will be disqualified
- The last team standing or the team with the highest points are the winners

Warm up

As a team, you have 30 seconds to get yourselves into the following formation: 2 hands on the floor and three feet.

Round 1

6 hands and 3 feet on the floor

Round 2

2 feet, no hands on the floor

Round 3

2 feet and 4 hands on the floor

Round 4

1 hand, 3 feet and one head on the floor

Tie-breaker

As a team, you have 15 seconds and cannot speak, to get yourselves into the following formation: 2 feet, no hands, and one head on the floor.

Playing with a big group?

The game can be adapted for bigger groups by adding more hands/ feet to each round. Feel free to add extra rounds of hands/ feet/elbows formations to our list to make things easier or more challenging depending on the group you're playing along with.

Why are we asking you to play this game?

We all rely on each other occasionally for support, and that's ok. We need the help of others to survive and thrive. Being homeless or at risk of becoming homeless makes it very hard to have a decent life and take part in society.

People in this situation may need support from the government, or organisations like Crisis to help end or prevent their homelessness. Making sure that everyone has safe, stable home benefits us all by creating a stronger, more productive society.

#ScraptheAct:

Homelessness should not be a crime. But an old law called the Vagrancy Act, makes it a crime sleep on the streets or beg in England and Wales.

It's the opposite of what you need when you're homeless – what people need is support. That's why Crisis along with a number of other charities are calling on the government to #ScraptheAct
